General Operating Policies & Procedures
Our orchestras may be small but they still require a fair number of policies and procedures. Even for those of us who have many policies in place, they could likely use a refresher. This is a time to compare notes on what the most essential policies and procedures are and what we all agree are the core elements they should contain. Bring your examples!

Community Collaborations
What kinds of interesting collaborations is your orchestra doing – or considering - with other institutions in your community? How have these collaborations enabled you to expand and improve existing programming or services, whether it’s offering sensory-friendly accommodations, marketing in innovative ways, or reaching a new segment of your community? Come prepared to discuss collaborations you’ve seen succeed, or with questions your peers might be able to help problem-solve. The aim will be to inspire each other to consider new collaborations, or ways to re-imagine existing ones, to better serve our communities.

11:45-12:15pm
Salon 8, Third Floor

Wrap-Up: What We’ve Learned
Throughout the week there were a large number of elective sessions available to attend. What were some of the most intriguing things we heard and how might we like to explore them further with a small-budget perspective in mind? Are there topics we’d like to flag for follow-up via peer calls or future in-person meetings? Are there resources we’d like to scout out so we can thoughtfully continue the conversation with others who couldn’t join us in Chicago?
