JT Kane

Dean of Visiting Faculty and Orchestra Manager
New World Symphony
Miami, Florida

JT Kane is currently the Dean of Visiting Faculty and Orchestra Manager for the New World Symphony (NWS). Before joining NWS, he worked as the Artistic Operations Manager for Artis—Naples, was the Personnel and Popular Programming Manager with the Louisiana Philharmonic Orchestra and spent five summers at the Aspen Music Festival and School, the last two as the Manager of Orchestral Operations.

As a violist, JT was the Assistant Principal Violist for the Chattanooga Symphony, and for six seasons was the Acting Assistant Principal Violist with the Orquesta Sinfónica de Xalapa in Veracruz, Mexico. While in Xalapa, JT taught viola at the Facultad de Música-Universidad Veracruzana, and the Instituto Superior de Música del Estado de Veracruz. As a chamber musician, JT formed two string quartets, the KLEF Quartet in Miami, Florida, and the Tamayo String Quartet in Xalapa, Veracruz.

JT received his Bachelor of Music in Viola Performance from the Harid Conservatory (now Conservatory of Music at Lynn University) and his Master of Music in Viola Performance from the University of Miami.
