

Tips for Preparing an FY2025 NEA Application

The latest Grants to Organizations guidelines (for fiscal year 2025) are now available on the National Endowment for the Arts' (NEA) website. To be fully prepared for the application process, read the guidelines very carefully, check out the list of Frequently Asked Questions, familiarize yourself with the reporting requirements in advance, and be in touch with NEA staff. Here are the League's tips for preparing an FY2025 NEA application, which includes an overview of guideline changes and important reminders, as well as suggestions on where to find more complete information.

Get the Essential Facts on the Guidelines

Grants for Arts Projects \(GAP\) and Challenge America contain descriptions of the types of projects the NEA supports. For GAP, take time to review carefully information corresponding to the artistic discipline under which you will apply; be aware that each discipline contains its own tailored instructions, requirements, and examples of competitive projects. For example, the GAP page for Music helpfully lists under the "Project Types" section several musical activities that are eligible for support, such as projects that pertain to music and health/well-being. The NEA is particularly interested in "collaborations, innovative presentation strategies, and initiatives that help organizations engage audiences in new and meaningful ways. In addition to projects that focus on standard repertoire, the NEA encourages the commissioning and performance of new American works." Grant applications should not cover an entire season of programming as the NEA does not fund seasonal or general operating support. Grants for Arts Projects applicants may request cost share/matching grants ranging from $10,000 to $100,000.

The GAP page for Arts Education describes competitive projects and goes into detailed explanation of the project types: Direct Learning, Professional Development, and Collective Impact. If the target audience is intergenerational, the NEA advises applications be submitted via one of the artistic disciplines rather than to Arts Education; the same goes for projects that focus on exposure to or appreciation for the arts, even if it is youth-focused. Be sure to read all pages to the bottom to ensure you have seen all the posted information and review the guidance on how to choose the right discipline for youth projects.

The lists of project types and competitive attributes are updated each year, so it is well worth reading each GAP discipline page with fresh eyes to determine where your project would best fit.

Challenge America offers $10,000 grant support primarily to small organizations for projects in all artistic disciplines that extend the reach of the arts to populations that are underserved (agency policy defines this as those whose opportunities to experience the arts are limited relative to: geography, ethnicity, economics, or disability. At least one of these characteristics must be evident in the proposed project). Grants require a cost share/match of $10,000 consisting of cash and/or in-kind contributions. Total project costs must be at least $20,000 or greater.

The NEA website features very helpful answers to your Grants for Arts Projects Frequently Asked Questions and Challenge America Frequently Asked Questions webpages on determining eligibility, the grant review process, how to submit an application, and understanding how Endowment and other federal funds may interact. Additionally, the GAP Applicant Resources and Challenge America Applicant Resources pages are helpful for prospective grantees to visit—in particular, the sections on Common Application Mistakes. The NEA has also created a guide for first-time applicants.

GAP applicants should be sure to register for the FY2025 Grants for Arts Projects Guidelines Webinar, taking place on Wednesday, January 10, 2024 at 3:00pm Eastern Time. Challenge America applicants should register for the FY2025 Challenge America Guidelines Webinar, taking place on February 28, 2024 at 3:00pm Eastern Time. Additional discipline-specific webinars and informal “office hours” style Q&A sessions will also be available; visit arts.gov/events for more details and to register.

The NEA is committed to diversity, equity, inclusion, and accessibility, and fostering mutual respect for the diverse beliefs and values of all individuals and groups. It encourages projects that address any of the following:

- Elevate artists as integral and essential to a healthy and vibrant society.
- Celebrate America’s creativity and/or cultural heritage.
- Facilitate cross-sector collaborations that center the arts at the intersection of other disciplines, sectors, and industries.
- Contribute to healthy and thriving local, regional, state-wide, and national arts ecosystems and arts infrastructures.
- Invest in organizational capacity-building and leadership development for arts organizations, arts workers, and artists.
- Support existing and new technology-centered creative practices across all artistic disciplines and forms, as well as build arts organizations’ capacity to serve a broad public by providing access, training, and other resources to engage with digital technologies.
- Address, develop creative work exploring, or reflect on the impacts of artificial intelligence (AI), in a way that is consistent with valuing human artistry. Projects may include artistic work, from across all artistic disciplines, that improves the public’s awareness or understanding of the responsible use of AI in the field of arts.
- Originate from or are in collaboration with the following constituencies encouraged by White House Executive Orders: Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs), Tribal Colleges and Universities, American Indian and Alaska Native tribes, Predominantly Black Institutions, Hispanic Serving Institutions, Asian American and Pacific Islander communities, and Organizations that support the independence and lifelong inclusion of people with disabilities.

In recognition of the United States of America’s 250th anniversary in 2026, the NEA is partnering with America250 to encourage arts projects that educate and engage communities in dialogue about the past, present, and future of our nation. Project examples may include public art recognizing the milestone, collaborative community arts projects exploring the nation’s identity, or retrospectives of celebrated or overlooked American artists. Projects are welcome in all artistic disciplines.

Projects may focus on reaching a particular group or demographic; however, they may not be exclusionary under Federal civil rights laws and policies prohibiting discrimination. This extends to hiring practices, artist selection processes, and audience engagement. For additional information, refer to this archived webinar: Things to Know Before You Apply: Federal Civil Rights and Your Grants Application.

Eligible organizations that received American Rescue Plan (ARP) or CARES Act funding may apply to the GAP program as long as there are no overlapping costs during the same grant period.

Application Deadlines and Process

Grants for Arts Projects and Challenge America applications are reviewed on the basis of two criteria: artistic excellence and artistic merit, with elements corresponding to each grant program. The GAP Review Criteria and Challenge America Review Criteria each contain definitions clarifying what the agency means by artistic excellence and how it evaluates artistic merit (such as “the qualifications of the project's personnel” for GAP, “potential to make quality arts or cultural resources more widely available” for Challenge America, and “evidence of direct compensation to artists, art collectives, and/or art workers” for both grant programs) that will be worth reading. Some GAP disciplines only accept certain project types at each deadline, and organizations may submit only one application in a calendar year to the agency: either in the Grants for Arts Projects or Challenge America categories, but not both.

There are limited exceptions to the single application rule:

- A parent organization may apply on its own and then again on behalf of an eligible separately identifiable independent component. Consult with Arts Endowment staff to verify eligibility. Programs and projects of organizations do not qualify as independent components.
- Our Town and Research: Grants in the Arts are not subject to the single application rule, but the request must be for a distinctly different project.

*IMPORTANT CHANGES AND REMINDERS:

MEDIA ARTS – SINGLE APPLICATION ONLY: Additional applications will no longer be accepted through the Media Arts discipline for the July 2024 deadline. Organizations may submit only one application to the FY 2025 Grants for Arts Projects program (i.e., one application per calendar year) with limited exceptions as noted above. All project types (described online) are accepted at both deadlines and applicants are encouraged to apply at the deadline that most closely fits the schedule of activities or timeline of the proposed project.

THREE REQUIRED REGISTRATIONS: Before applying, your organization must create and maintain up-to-date registrations with Login.gov, the System for Award Management (SAM) at SAM.gov, and Grants.gov. Registering and maintaining these accounts is always FREE. These registrations can take several weeks to finalize, so begin this process early! Registrations with Login.gov, SAM and Grants.gov must be active for you to submit your application. Finalize your registrations well before the application deadline. This should allow you time to resolve any issues that may arise.

Failure to comply with these requirements may result in your inability to submit your application. See the How to Apply page corresponding to GAP and Challenge America for more details.

- Login.gov posts information in their Help Center, or use their online form to submit a question.
- SAM.gov Federal Service Desk: Call 1-866-606-8220 or find information at SAM Help.
- The Grants.gov Contact Center is available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. (Phone: 1-800-518-4726, email: support@grants.gov, or consult the information at Support)
- The Arts Endowment will not accept late applications.

Challenge America eligibility: Previous Challenge America applicants and grantees, as well as organizations that received American Rescue Plan (ARP) or CARES Act funding are eligible to apply for FY2025 Challenge America funding, as long as they were not recommended for FY2022, FY2023, or FY2024 funding in Grants for Arts Projects, Research Grants in the Arts, or Our Town. First-time NEA applicants and Challenge America grantees of any year are eligible to apply. The prior limit on consecutive years of receiving Challenge America grants now applies only to applicants that were recommended for FY22, 23, or 24 funding in GAP, Research Grants, or Our Town—such applicants may not apply for FY2025 Challenge America support. See Applicant Eligibility for more information.

Reminders

Project Reporting: The Arts Endowment staff will assign one of the agency's objectives to your project: Engagement (now includes Creation), Learning (all Arts Education grantees will be assigned the Learning objective), or Our Town. Before applying, review the reporting requirements for the agency's objectives. Beyond the reporting requirements for all grantees, selected Grants for Arts Projects grantees will be asked to assist in the collection of additional information that can help the NEA determine the degree to which agency objectives were achieved. You may be contacted to provide evidence of project accomplishments including, but not limited to, work samples, community action plans, cultural asset studies, programs, reviews, relevant news clippings, and playbills. Remember that you are required to maintain project documentation for three years following submission of your final reports. Find more information on the Award Administration page.

Arts Education: Again, guidelines are updated every year, so do take a few moments to re-read them with fresh eyes. Within Grants for Arts Projects and the project discipline of Arts Education, the three project types are Direct Learning (projects for pre-K-12 students), Professional Development (projects for the educators and artists who support them), and Collective Impact (projects for the schools and communities that serve them). Applicants interested in Collective Impact projects may wish to view this dedicated page on Arts Education Collective Impact Grants. Arts Education projects may be in any artistic discipline but projects for short-term arts exposure, arts appreciation, or intergenerational activity should not be submitted under Arts Education; rather, they should be submitted under the appropriate artistic discipline. Further guidance about how to choose the appropriate category for arts learning projects can be found online.

Contact NEA Staff - Early!

NEA program staff is extremely helpful and willing to answer your questions! Consider being in touch with an NEA specialist, well before the grant deadline nears, to talk through your plans for preparing an application or to seek comments regarding your previous applications to the NEA. Whether your project was funded or not, comments will strengthen your next application. Also, please note that after you've consulted with NEA staff, it is acceptable to submit a new, improved application for a project which has been declined in a previous application.

Extra Advice from NEA Panelists and Music Staff

When NEA panelists meet to review grant applications, the League asks NEA staff for any extra tips for orchestras preparing applications. During grant review sessions, panelists are unanimous in one request to all applicant organizations, large and small: Read the guidelines carefully and all the way through.

Panelists and staff also offer the following:

- NEA grants are awarded only for specific projects. Attempts to disguise requests for general operating support as projects are easily detected.
- Work samples are crucial for evaluating the artistic quality of your project. Pay very careful attention to the quality of your work samples, particularly audio and video recordings, and make sure the samples reinforce the objective stated in your project. Check the guidelines and adhere to the suggested length.
- When designing a project, if you choose to submit a collaborative one, think creatively about potential long-term partnerships with community organizations and be sure to make clear the collaboration is not just a one-shot relationship that will end after completion of the project.
- When describing your project activities, be sure to identify a clear, singular, defined goal for the project, and outline concrete steps that will be taken to reach the goal. A project need not be new to the applicant organization to qualify for a grant but will earn more serious attention if it is clearly integrated into your organization's mission. Review your project description against the guidelines for Grants for Arts Projects or for Challenge America, respectively.
- Artistic excellence and artistic merit are the only criteria used in the review of grant applications, though it's worth noting that "creative process" is now included in defining artistic excellence. When describing artistic excellence as it relates to an arts education project, explain the quality of artists and educators and how this could impact the arts learning experience. When describing artistic merit, describe the potential of the project to broaden access to the arts, expand and diversify audiences, or strengthen communities through the arts.
- For applications including a commissioning request, whenever possible, include opportunities for the commissioned work to be performed in multiple venues and for varying audiences.
- In the financial section of the web form, be certain to answer all questions as completely as possible, including the question regarding the organization's fiscal health. Do not leave that section blank. If the orchestra has a deficit, provide a detailed explanation of plans to address it.
- Write as clearly and succinctly as possible. Do not use acronyms or initials unless they are well known.
- Spell-check your written material in advance, and have it proof-read. Panelists feel failure to submit carefully prepared applications indicates potential carelessness in the execution of your project.
- Again – read the guidelines carefully and thoroughly each year. There can be a lot of information, and sometimes additions or changes can be subtle, yet offer some insight into how your activity might suit a particular discipline. Do your best to read through all information with as fresh a perspective as possible to be sure you understand the parameters and opportunities. When in doubt, feel welcome to contact NEA staff, but the earlier you can ask your questions, the more time you can adapt your application accordingly!
