12:30pm-1:25pm Welcome and Voice Your Hot Topics
Welcome to Midwinter! In our opening session, we will say hello, break some ice, check in on YOD at 50 Celebration Project plans, and collect the topics for Hot Topics discussion the next day.

Facilitated by Lindsey Nova, Executive Director, Three Rivers Young Peoples Orchestras

1:25pm-1:30pm Quick Break

1:30pm-2:30pm How to Build a Constructive Partnership Between Your Youth Orchestra and the Board
Exceptional governance happens when there is a strong constructive partnership between the chief executive and staff and the board chair and members. Recognizing that the effectiveness of this relationship is interdependent, ideally chief executives can maximize the strategic asset of their boards as a powerful force to support their work. Chief executives and boards excel when they understand that they are mutually dependent on one another to create a successful organization. This session will provide clarity around respective roles for a constructive partnership as well as ways to build genuine trust and respect, whether your organization has its own board, or you manage a youth orchestra navigating a relationship with a parent organization board of directors.

*Speaker: David Styers, Director, Learning and Leadership Programs,
League of American Orchestras (formerly of BoardSource)*

2:30pm-3:30pm

Building a Thriving and Vibrant Workplace

Discover and share current approaches and practices used to create a productive and healthy workplace. We'll look at ways to increase team satisfaction and growth through a positive work environment that reflects your organizational values. Discussion will focus on areas such as managing employee time and leave, healthy operations and daily scheduling, and ways to build community within your team. Hear how three organizations are tackling these issues, and then we'll open the room for guided discussion.

Facilitated by Debora Kang, Director, Education of Detroit Symphony Orchestra; Diana Scoggins, Executive Director, Metropolitan Youth Symphony; and Loretta Thompson, Executive Director, DC Youth Orchestra Program

Notice: It is important to keep in mind antitrust rules governing competition that apply to this group discussion. While the agenda for this group includes discussion of a variety of issues that are crucial to orchestras' planning and strategies, the goal is not to agree on a single approach to these issues. With the benefit of analysis and discussion, each orchestra will be able to decide independently what course of action is best for its own organization. We ask you to avoid comments that relate to your orchestra's current or future plans for ticket or event pricing (actual ticket prices, discount amounts), bargaining (including collective bargaining agreements or with vendors), or compensation.
